B. Description of Advisory Services Offered

All relationships with Millington Financial Advisors, LLC start with complementary get acquainted sessions. During these sessions we listen to what the client's individual wants and desires are for an ongoing financial advisory relationship. We help the client understand more about what we can offer in the areas of financial planning, investment management services and pension consulting services. We then work towards developing a structured relationship based on financial planning, investment management or pension consulting.

Financial Planning

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC's financial planning clients can receive either a:

- Comprehensive Financial Plan
- Basic Financial Plan, or a
- Financial Review

A Millington Financial Advisors, LLC financial plan includes:

1. Establishing and defining the client-planner relationship
2. Gathering client data, including goals
3. Analyzing and evaluating the client's financial status
4. Developing and presenting financial planning recommendations
5. Implementing the financial planning recommendations
6. Monitoring the financial planning recommendations

After the get acquainted sessions, if a client determines they would like to receive financial planning services, a complexity assessment is provided which recommends either a comprehensive or basic financial plan.

Comprehensive Financial Planning: a comprehensive financial plan will be recommended for those individuals or households with a complex set of financial objectives and assets. We would typically recommend that a client with a net worth greater than $2 million receive this level of service. However, this level of service would only be recommended if it were identified that multiple opportunities existed across the areas of:

- Tax Planning
- Insurance Planning
- Retirement Planning
- Estate Planning
- Disability or Long Term Care Planning
- Educational Planning
- Goal Planning
- Cash Flow Planning
- Debt Restructuring

Basic Financial Planning: a basic financial plan would be recommended for those individuals or households with a less complex set of financial planning needs. Typically, clients with a net worth less than $2 million would receive an appropriate level of service with a basic financial plan. Under certain circumstances we may recommend a comprehensive financial plan for those individuals or households with less than $2 million of net worth but with a relatively complex set of financial opportunities across the areas mentioned within the comprehensive financial planning area of this section.

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC, financial planning clients pay a flat retainer fee detailed in “Item 5 Fees and Compensation”. In a financial planning relationship there are a series of client planner meetings designed to efficiently and accurately provide a complete picture of the client’s current financial position and their opportunity to accomplish their stated financial goals.

Both comprehensive and basic financial planning clients receive services which entail Millington Financial Advisors, LLC taking the time required to understand, evaluate, organize, and feedback the financial position and understanding of their client’s goals. We develop a financial plan that is mindful of those goals and highlight the necessary steps to properly position the client to achieve the objectives they hold most dear.

We help our clients execute their financial plan by providing specific investment recommendations and guidance. If need be, we will consult with experts, or recommend our clients work with experts, in the areas of law, tax and insurance.

Financial planning services may extend to the ongoing evaluation and monitoring of our client’s financial portfolio. Timely views of the client’s financial positions are maintained to ensure recommendations continue to remain appropriate, progress is properly communicated and to determine if any change to the client’s individual circumstances should be considered.

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC remains conscious of changing tax laws and economic circumstances by adhering to a comprehensive continuing professional education program. We also invest in a complete set of research tools which provide insightful economic and investment analysis. Our ongoing implementation and monitoring services will include additional recommendations to accommodate new or changing circumstances affecting our client's financial environment.

The ongoing relationship is periodically reviewed to determine the appropriate level of time and fees necessary to maintain the client's desired level of financial planning and client and planner interaction.

Financial Review: A financial review is offered to clients who do not want or need an ongoing client planner relationship and wish to schedule meetings at the frequency of their choice to address any one of the topics covered in a financial plan. The time for these meetings is limited to 2 hour meetings and the fees will be based on hourly rates detailed in "Item 5 Fees and Compensation".

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

A. Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

In offering securities advice to its clients, Millington Financial Advisors, LLC uses a combination of Fundamental, Technical and Cyclical analysis as part of a broad based asset-allocation process.

- i. Fundamental Analysis. This form of analysis focuses on individual companies and their respective industry groups. This sort of analysis tends to be long term in nature. Sources used for fundamental analysis mainly include company's financial statements, product lines, management experience and expertise, and the overall outlook of the company's industry
- ii. Technical Analysis. This form of analysis uses indexes, averages, theories, price trends and charts. Past history of both the securities and the markets as a whole is used in Technical Analysis. This is more of a short term approach.
- iii. Cyclical Analysis. This form of analysis deals with recognizing cyclical patterns in past stock and market performance and using that data to predict future performance. This analysis involves the use of charts and graphs.

Sources of information used by Millington Financial Advisors, LLC include financial media, inspections of corporate activities, research materials prepared by others, annual reports, prospectus and filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

In advising retail clients of Millington Financial Advisors, LLC investing in the AssetMark and Investnet Platforms, Millington Financial Advisors, LLC uses model portfolios of mutual funds,

Exchange Traded Funds (ETF's) and Variable Annuity sub-accounts provided by a number of institutional investment strategists and based on the information, research, asset allocation methodology and investment strategies of these institutional strategists.

With respect to clients investing in either AssetMark's or Envestnet 's Platform, Millington Financial Advisors, LLC introduces clients to, and advises on the selection of, independent investment managers who provide discretionary management of individual portfolios including a wide variety of different securities types. Clients will receive a separate disclosure from such investment managers regarding any such investment manager's advisory services.

B. Investment Strategy and Method of Analysis Material Risks

Investment strategies used by Millington Financial Advisors, LLC to implement investment advice given to clients include long-term purchases (securities held at least a year), short-term purchases (securities sold within a year), trading (securities sold within 30 days), short sales, margin transactions and option writing including covered options and spread strategies.

It is important to note that investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Certain principal risks include:

- i. Price Volatility. Common stock prices fluctuate for several reasons including changes in investors' perceptions of the financial condition of an issuer or the general condition of the relevant stock market, such as the current market volatility, or when political or economic events affecting the issuers occur. In addition, common stock prices may be particularly sensitive to rising interest rates, as the cost of capital rises and borrowing costs increase.
- ii. Current Economic Conditions. Starting in December 2007 and throughout most of 2010, economic activity declined across all sectors of the economy, and the United States has experienced increased unemployment. The economic crisis affected the global economy with European and Asian markets also suffering historic losses. Although the latest economic data suggests slightly increased activity in the U.S. economy, unemployment remains high. Extraordinary steps have been taken by the governments of several leading economic countries to combat the economic crisis; however, the impact of these measures is not yet fully known and cannot be predicted.
- iii. Dividends. There is no guarantee that the issuers of the securities will declare dividends in the future or that if declared they will either remain at current levels or increase over time.
- iv. Financial Condition of Issuer. The financial condition of an issuer may worsen, or its credit ratings may drop, resulting in a reduction in the value of your units. This may occur at any point in time, including during the initial offering period.

- v. Legislation/Litigation. From time to time, various legislative initiatives are proposed in the United States and abroad which may have a negative impact on certain of the companies. In addition, litigation regarding any of the issuers of securities or of the industries represented by such issuers, may negatively impact the value of securities. We cannot predict what impact any pending or proposed legislation or pending or threatened litigation will have on the value of securities.
- vi. Foreign Securities. ADRs are issued by a bank or trust company to evidence ownership of underlying securities issued by foreign corporations. Securities of foreign issuers present risks beyond those of domestic securities. More specifically, foreign risk is the risk that foreign securities will be more volatile than U.S. securities due to such factors as adverse economic, currency, political, social or regulatory developments in a country, including government seizure of assets, excessive taxation, limitations on the use or transfer of assets, the lack of liquidity or regulatory controls with respect to certain industries or differing legal and/or accounting standards.
- vii. Emerging Markets. . Emerging markets are generally defined as countries with low per capita income in the initial stages of their industrialization cycles. Risks of investing in developing or emerging countries include the possibility of investment and trading limitations, liquidity concerns, delays and disruptions in settlement transactions, political uncertainties and dependence on international trade and development assistance. Companies headquartered in emerging market countries may be exposed to greater volatility and market risk.
- viii. Inflation Risk. Inflation risk is the risk that the value of assets or income from investments will be less in the future as inflation decreases the value of money.

C. Security Specific Material Risks

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC does not primarily recommend a particular type of security. When a recommendation includes securities offered through a prospectus, Millington Financial Advisors, LLC will make the prospectus available to the client and encourage them to review its contents in order to gain the appropriate understanding of the specific material risks involved with that recommendation.

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC, clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Charles F. Millington.

B. Investment Recommendations Involving a Material Financial Interest and Conflicts of Interest

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC anticipates that, in appropriate circumstances, consistent with clients' investment objectives, it will cause accounts over which Millington Financial Advisors, LLC has management authority to be effected, and will recommend to investment advisory clients or prospective clients, the purchase or sale of securities in which Millington Financial Advisors, LLC, its affiliates and/or clients, directly or indirectly, have a position of interest. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC's employees and persons associated with Millington Financial Advisors, LLC are required to follow Millington Financial Advisors, LLC's Code of Ethics. Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of Millington Financial Advisors, LLC and its affiliates may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for Millington Financial Advisors, LLC's clients. The Code of Ethics is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the employees of Millington Financial Advisors, LLC will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code, certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions based upon a determination that these would not materially interfere with the best interests of Millington Financial Advisors, LLC's clients. In addition, the Code requires pre-clearance of many transactions, and restricts trading in close proximity to client trading activity. Nonetheless, because the Code of Ethics in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. Employee trading is continually monitored under the Code of Ethics, in order to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Millington Financial Advisors, LLC and its clients.

C. Advisory Firm Purchase of Same Securities Recommended to Clients and Conflicts of Interest

It is the responsibility of Millington Financial Advisors, LLC to take appropriate action with regards to the investing in the same securities as our clients. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC must first disclose any control relationship with an issuer. A Registered Representative may not recommend or otherwise induce the purchase of the securities of any issuer it controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with Millington Financial Advisors, LLC unless, in connection with the recommendation or inducement, the Registered Representative discloses such fact to the customer. If such disclosure is not made in writing, it must be supplemented by the giving or sending of a written disclosure "at or before the completion of the transaction".

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC, within the Code of Ethics includes provisions relating to the practice of insider trading, and the misuse of material inside information. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC also adheres to employee trading policies stated within Code of Ethics. The intent of this policy is to ensure that the primary focus of efficient and productive running of our various businesses is met, mainly that of serving our client's interest is first and foremost.

D. Client Securities Recommendation or Trades and Concurrent Advisory Firm Securities Transactions and Conflicts of Interest

Certain affiliated accounts may trade in the same securities with client accounts on an aggregated basis when consistent with Millington Financial Advisors, LLC's obligation of best execution. In such circumstances, the affiliated and client accounts will share commission costs equally and receive securities at a total average price. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated on a pro rata basis. Any exceptions will be explained on the Order.

It is Millington Financial Advisors, LLC's policy that the firm will not affect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for client accounts. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC will also not cross trades between client accounts. Principal transactions are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliated broker-dealer, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. A principal transaction may also be deemed to have occurred if a security is crossed between an affiliated hedge fund and another client account. An agency cross transaction is defined as a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser, or any person controlled by or under common control with the investment adviser, acts as broker for both the advisory client and for another person on the other side of the transaction. Agency cross transactions may arise where an adviser is dually registered as a broker-dealer or has an affiliated broker-dealer.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

A. Factors Used to Select Broker-Dealers for Client Transactions

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC uses or recommends TD Ameritrade for client assets. We chose this custodian on the basis of having a reasonable, straightforward commission structure, integrity, and financial stability. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC will benefit from certain services and information provided to the firm by the custodian, but we do not have discretion over the commissions our clients pay.

As a function of choosing and recommending this custodian for our clients' assets, Millington Financial Advisors, LLC enjoys access to research reports to which we might not otherwise have access. The availability of these reports is no way a function of the number or types of trades the firm executes on behalf of its clients. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC receives no cash benefits or equipment from the custodian.

Millington Financial Advisors, LLC assists the client in selecting the risk/return objective and Portfolio Strategists that best suit the client's objectives. The client then specifically directs the account to be invested in accordance with the chosen asset allocation. When the client selects the asset allocation, the client further directs that the account be automatically adjusted to reflect any adjustment in the asset allocation by the selected Portfolio Strategist. This client authorization results in the purchase and sale of certain direct investments, mutual funds or ETFs (or transfers between variable annuity sub-accounts) without further authorization by the client or any other party at such time as the Portfolio Strategist changes the composition of the selected model asset allocation.

The client receives confirmation of all transactions in the account and is free to terminate participation in the Platform and retain or dispose of any assets in the account at any time. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC has no authority to cause any purchase or sale of securities in any client account or change the selected model asset allocation or to direct the account to be invested in any manner other than as previously authorized by the client.

If a client selects an IMA, UMA or CMA investment solution, the third-party Discretionary Managers are granted the authority to manage the accounts on a discretionary basis, including the authority to buy, sell, select, remove and select securities and other investments for the account, and to select broker-dealers or others through which transactions will be affected.

Although Millington Financial Advisors does not select the executing brokers that the Custodian uses, it does evaluate the Custodian's trading services ("Best Execution") on a periodic basis. This is done by evaluating the execution statistics that the Custodian is required to disclose on a periodic basis.

B. Aggregating Securities Transactions for Client Accounts

Transactions for each client generally will be affected independently, unless Millington Financial Advisors, LLC decides to purchase or sell the same security for several clients at approximately the same time. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC may (but is not obligated to) combine or “batch” such orders to obtain best execution, to negotiate more favorable commission rates, or to allocate equitably among Millington Financial Advisors, LLC clients differences in prices and commissions or other transaction costs that might have been obtained had such orders been placed independently.

Under this procedure, transactions will generally be averaged as to price and allocated among Millington Advisors, LLC clients’ pro rata to the purchase and sale orders placed for each client on any given day. To the extent that Millington Financial Advisors, LLC determines to aggregate client orders for the purchase or sale of securities, including securities in which Millington Financial Advisors, LLC’s affiliate(s) may invest, Millington Financial Advisors, LLC shall generally do so in accordance with applicable rules promulgated under the Advisers Act and no-action guidance provided by the staff of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. Millington Financial Advisors, LLC shall not receive any additional compensation or remuneration as a result of the aggregation. In the event that Millington Financial Advisors, LLC determines that a prorated allocation is not appropriate under the particular circumstances, the allocation will be made based upon other relevant factors, which may include: (i) when only a small percentage of the order is executed, shares may be allocated to the account with the smallest order or the smallest position or to an account that is out of line with respect to security or sector weightings relative to other portfolios, with similar mandates; (ii) allocations may be given to one account when one account has limitations in its investment guidelines which prohibit it from purchasing other securities which are expected to produce similar investment results and can be purchased by other accounts; (iii) if an account reaches an investment guideline limit and cannot participate in an allocation, shares may be reallocated to other accounts (this may be due to unforeseen changes in an account’s assets after an order is placed); (iv) with respect to sale allocations, allocations may be given to accounts low in cash; (v) in cases when a pro rata allocation of a potential execution would result in a de minimis allocation in one or more accounts, Millington Financial Advisors, LLC may exclude the account(s) from the allocation; the transactions may be executed on a pro rata basis among the remaining accounts; or (vi) in cases where a small proportion of an order is executed in all accounts, shares may be allocated to one or more accounts on a random basis.
